A KAUAI RIVER.

To a Friend, Who Will Best Understand It.

[Special for the ADVERTISER and GAZETTE.]

I can hear the murmur lowly,
Of the song the river sings;
As it creepeth softly, slowly
Where the lush grass idly swings, In the breezes sweeping over, on sweetly scented wings.

I can hear again the voices Of happy birds, in dreams,
And the weary heart rejoices
In the glow of sunny beams—In the laughter of the brooks, and the ripple of the streams.

Once again in lands enchanted,
I am wandering 'yond the seas;
In the woods by music haunted,
When wind fingers strike the keys,
And the songs in dewy words are like heavenly harmonies.

'Neath the feet of lordly mountains,
Lay the blooming fields of cane,
And a wealth of brimming fountains Flashed adown the far hill's chain Half hid in sheeny lustres of the shimmering silver rain.

Away up the curving reaches,
Where the wild acacias bloom,
And above the pebbly beaches, Underneath the grey-green gloom Of the wide kukui shadows and the oleander plume.

There's a grass embroidered haven,
By the gleaming waterways,
And a grove with flowers empaven
Where there rose in olden days, Through the green groined vault above to the Lord a song of praise.

I shall see no more the valley Where the lime and orange blooms Nor again in woodland alleys Shall I feel the malle's fumes;
Or walk the gleaming beaches, neath the cocoa's nodding plumes.

'Round the wreath that rosy fingers Deftly wove in sunny hours,
A sweet woodland odor lingers,
An aroma of the bowers Hangs around the withered leaves and the long-time faded flowers.

There are voices stilled forever,
And forever closed bright eyes,
That I met beside the river,
'Neath the glow of sunlit skies, But I'll meet them all again, in the heavenly paradise.

CHARLES H. EWART, Dalbeattie, Scotland, May, 1893.

AT THE WORLD'S FAIR.

The Moors, the Turks, wild men with dirks,
Here show their costumes curious;
The Japanese, and folks like these,
Wear knives that are injurious.

Here are balloons, and foreign tunes
That skirl both fast and furious;
And Cairo folk as brown as oaks,
And Zuluz true or spurious.

The dancing girls make startling whirls—
Be careful how you look at them;
All innocent and shy, I went
And—well—a peep I took at them.

Men from Ceylon you'll see anon,
From Sitka and from Tokio.
For sights so rare you everywhere Fees to men white or smoky owe.

Here mosques you see and Japan tea,
And claims they serve romantically;
And sliding cars and foreign jars,
For which they charge gigantically.

The Ferris wheel with arms of steel, High as a tower will wind you up,
If you should fall for good and all,
The doctors they would bind you up.

—Eugene Field in the Chicago News.

"Wife" Defined.

A pretty school-teacher, for a little advertisement, had asked her class for the best original definition of "wife," and the boy in the corner had promptly responded, "A rib."

She looked at him reproachfully, and nodded to the boy with dreamy eyes who seemed anxious to say something.

"Man's guiding star and guardian angel," he said in response to the nod.

"A helpmeet," put in a flaxen haired girl.

"One who soothes man in adversity," suggested a demure little girl.

"And spends his money when he's flush," added the incorrigible boy in the corner.

"There was a lull, and the pretty, dark-haired girl said slowly:
"A wife is the envy of spinsters."

"One who makes a man hustle," was the next suggestion.

"And keeps him from making a fool of himself," put in another girl.

"Some one for a man to find fault with when things go wrong," said a sorrowful little maiden.

"Stop right there," said the pretty school teacher. "That's the best definition."—Pioneer Press.

is a good showing for so-called hard times.

eral Samuel C. Armstrong at the head of the negro and Indian indus-

Harvard college has sent out 18-300 graduates since its organization.
Of this number 9500 are still living.
Yale's graduates number 15,350, of whom 7,800 are still alive.

places in the government, as follows:
Two presidents, two vice-presidents, fifteen cabinet officers and thirty ministers plenipotentiary.

There were 4876 students at the University of Berlin last winter, the largest number in the history of the institution. This is about 2000 more than were in attendance at Harvard.

A man said to be 75 years old has entered as a student at Princeton college. He had all his life been imbed with a desire to have a college education, and a legacy has at last placed him in a position to obtain one.

ABOUT THE PRESS.

There were 18,714 newspapers published in the United States last year.
Of these, 1759 were dailies.

On the Australian Continent the Sidney Gazette and New South Wales Advertiser was the first paper there founded, in 1803.

In Austr-Hungary there are newspapers printed in fifteen different languages, a greater variety than is found in any other country.

It was not until the year 1615 that the Post Zeitung, published at Frankfurt, made its first appearance as the first newspaper published in Europe.

The total number of daily newspapers throughout the world is almost 5000. Considerable more than half of them are printed in English. German is next in importance, then French, Spanish and Italian.

In the year 59 a. c. Julius Caesar founded the first Roman newspaper, entitled Acti Populi Romani Diurna (which would be translated Daily Records of the Roman People) which was sent in many copies to the provinces of the Roman Empire.

Iceland, that little island in the north, isolated and away from the great continents of civilization, has twelve journals in circulation; ten are fairly newspapers and two are magazines. Two of the papers are printed in Copenhagen; the rest of them on the island. These papers are published and circulated further northward than any other papers in the world.

The most profitable newspaper in the world, notwithstanding its political difficulties of the past few years, is the London Times, which is valued at over $25,000,000. The most profitable paper in France, Le Petit Journal, earns more than $600,000 a year net, although about fifteen years ago it was insolvent. The London Standard is valued at $10,000,000; the Daily News at $6,500,000; the Telegraph at $6,000,000.

What newspaper reader has not read of large circulations? Le Petit Journal of Paris heads the list with a daily issue of 700,000 copies. The London Daily Telegraph is said to come next, with a circulation of nearly 300,000 copies. Lloyd's Weekly London Newspaper sends out more than 620,000 copies each week, while the Berliner Modenwelt, a semi-monthly journal of fashions, issues 600,000 copies, 250,000 of which are in German, and the balance in
